

Know your skills and experience

What are core skills?

Core skills are about you and are not related to a specific job. Some of these skills include:

- working well with others
- communicating effectively
- working hard
- solving problems.

What are technical skills?

Technical skills are related to specific jobs, acquired through a mix of studying and workplace experience. They are skills like:

- food preparation
- organising rosters and staff
- making sales
- using technology.

How to gain workplace experience

You can develop your core and technical skills on the job through:

- part-time work
- casual work
- temporary jobs
- short-term work placements
- internships or volunteering.

Even the experience gained from hobbies or sports give you valuable skills that you can apply to the workplace.

Explore the skills and experience you already have at yourcareer.gov.au